

ABSTRACT

The present invention provides a vector for stably transforming cells. The vector comprises the green fluorescent protein (GFP) from Aequorea victoria as a marker. The invention also provides stably transfected cell lines which may be used to assess real-time biological processes, including tumor cell migration.